AN AFFECTING SCENE.

The Sermon John Dubois Preached

patron of this town, were very pathetic, and have left a deep impression on the community, writes a Dubois (Pa.,) correspondent of The New York Sun. Although not an infidel, he had lived a careless life. He seldom went to church, preferring to spend Sunday walking about his mills or his fine farm of one thousand acres. For a year or more, however, his mind had been inclined to religious matters. He did not go to the preachers with his per-plexities. He read his bible and con-sulted with his lawyer about it. His lawyer was Hon. George A. Jenks, who has just resigned the assistant secre-taryship of the interior in order to keep a promise to Mr. Dubois that he would take the place of the latter as confidential adviser to a young nephew who gets the vast estate.

onger, he would not wish to take

Although his works were divided into different departments, each under its responsible head, he knew all of the eight hundred men who worked for iim, and always spoke to them as courteously as if they were all millionaires as well as himself. Some years ago, when times were dull and lumber fell to a low figure, the managers of his works agreed that there must be a reduction in the wages of the men, and so told him. He heard them through and took the figures they had brought him, but made no decision. The next day he summoned them to meet him

This will not do. I have examined the books at the store, and find that it takes about all these men earn to buy necessaries for themselves and their families. If we must reduce wages I will begin with you, who are better can stand a loss better than the men can a reduction.

An investigator of accurate mind has ealculated there are now about eighty thousand traveling salesmen on the road in this country, and that their expense accounts alone will average $1,500 a year each, says the Nashville American. He says: "This means an outlay of $130,000,000 a year, and if you count an average salary of $1,000 a year it will swell the total to $200,-000,000 a year. This immense sum is scat-tered all over the United States. It keeps up the hotels, and is one of the most important items of railroad pas-senger receipts. The character of the traveling salesman has changed with-in a decade past. You will find very few boys and fewer drunkards upon the roads. The competition is so great and the expense so heavy that firms have to send out their best men, and salaries of $3,000 and $5,000 a year are by no means uncommon.

One man I know gets $3,000 a year for selling the skins which butchers put around sausages. He dresses like a Broadway swell and carries his samples in a bag no larger than a lady's shopping satchel. The best of such skins are made in Europe, and butchers buy of him everywhere. Then there is a man I know who travels from Boston to San Francisco and sells nothing but one grade of bootblacking. Some travelers sell by pictures of the articles they have to sell. Clothing forms the largest class of drummers, and next come those who sell boots and shoes. Then we have the dry-goods salesman, the grocer, the hardware men, hats and caps, and others as numerous as there are trades and factories.

"Traveling men," this gentleman continued, "are, as a rule, bright, generous fellows. They spend freely, and many of them, when they become old and leave the road, find themselves poor. We have now a project to take care of disabled traveling men. It is a traveling men's home, to be endowed by traveling men's home, to be endowed by traveling men and to be devoted to their use. The idea is that each one of the 80,000 travelers is to give $1 a year for the next three years to such an institution. This will make a total of $240,000, and from this we will buy a farm in Kentucky, or some other good locatity, and erect comfortable buildings, with read ne-rooms, parlors, and ings, with read ng-rooms, parlors, and chambers, so that the occupants can have all the comforts of life during their declining years. We will further endow the home by a year or two more of contributions, and the institution will be under the care of a competent board of managers. This project is, I under-stand, to be submitted to the next annual meeting of merchant travelelers. It has many supporters among travel-ing salesmen, and I will not be surprised if it is carried out."

the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, requires cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of KENT'S VEGETABLE FAMILY FILLS will be sufficient. Use no other.

Address,

The circumstances surrounding the death of John Dubois, the father and

A few days before his death Mr. Dubois sent for Rev. Mr. Bell, and, after a long conversation with him, he was baptized and received into the Presbyterian church. He immediately sent for the heads of all the departments in his works, and as many of the men as could crowd into the sickroom, to the number of about fifty. When they were gathered he gave them such an exhortation as had never been heard before in this region. He told them he was dying and that if he had been well assured of his eternal welfare a week before he would not be living to talk to them. He could not let go life, he said, until he got that question settled, and he urged them not to put it off as he had done. He was willing now to die, but if it was the will of providence that he should live one year his affairs again. He would put in every day, he said, going about the mills telling his men the great truth that he had at length found out, and trying to undo some of the evil his example had wrought in his long lifetime. His voice and brain was strong, although his body was wasted almost to in bed propped with pillows. The men a skeleton, and he could scarcely sit up had worked for him-some ten, some twenty, some thirty years. They were rough, grizzly fellows from the logging and the mills, but there was not a dry cheek in the room as he talked to them and called them by name and bade them good-by. Three days later he died. He was buried on his own farm a short distance back of the house where he had lived. He picked out the spot himself. It is on the top of a gently sloping hill, and overlooks his mills and the town that he built. For the three days between his death and his funeral all hands in the town were as idle as his own. Not a wheel turned in any of the mills. Nobody did any business in the stores. Three thousand reople looked at him in his coffin and walked behind it to the grave.
